Plans announced for The Queen's Platinum Jubilee celebrations on the Sandringham Estate

Her Majesty The Queen at Sandringham: An Exemplary Reign and a Unique Country House

To mark the historic occasion of The Queen's Platinum Jubilee, celebrations will take place throughout 2022 on the Sandringham Estate, the Country Retreat of Her Majesty The Queen in Norfolk.

A special exhibition inside the Ballroom at Sandringham House will go on display from 9th April – 13th October, with formal commemorative planting in the Gardens from May.

Her Majesty The Queen at Sandringham: An Exemplary Reign and a Unique Country House, is this year's special exhibition at Sandringham and will showcase The Queen and the Royal Family's affection for the much-loved country retreat. Highlights of the exhibition include objects and photographs relating to The Queen's love of animals, horses and the great outdoors, as well as a special audio-visual display focusing on the very first Christmas Day televised broadcast from 1957, recorded by The Queen at Sandringham House.

The Estate will also host several events over the extended June Bank Holiday Weekend beginning on the 2 June with the traditional lighting of the Jubilee Beacon in the Royal Parkland.

Katherine Jenkins OBE will be joined by The Military Wives to perform a very special live outdoor music concert on Friday 3 June and a live screening of the "Platinum Party at the Palace" will be shown on a big screen in the Royal Parkland on Saturday 4 June.

The weekend will culminate with a Pageant on the Estate showcasing a decade of motoring, accompanied by live music and aerial displays.

A range of limited-edition commemorative pieces unique to the Sandringham Estate Shop will be introduced in the coming months, to include a Sandringham Platinum Jubilee Pink Gin, a Platinum Jubilee Pale Ale, Sandringham celebratory own blend Tea and a special preserve made from local Norfolk fruit.
